Our speaker last month was Lloyd Shelleman. Lloyd gave a very interesting talk on how to use hand planes. He spoke about the different types of planes and how to sharpen them. He also demonstrated how to set-up a plane to get the proper cut. Here are a few points that Lloyd made:

1. The grind on the blade should be about 30 to 35 degrees.
2. The length of the bevel should be 2 times the thickness of the blade.
3. The bevel edge goes down for Jack and Smooth planes and up for Block planes.
4. Chip breaker should be about 1/16 inch from the cutting edge.
